About the Lecture

Dr. Markou is a Researcher in the Institute for Greek and Roman Antiquity at the National Hellenic Research Foundation in Athens. She is currently engaged, in collaboration with the University of Edinburgh, in the production of a type corpus of Cypriot coinage. She is also part of the team compiling the corpus of Cypriot-syllabic inscriptions for inclusion in the Inscriptiones Graecae series. Her doctoral thesis, on the gold coinage of the ancient kingdoms of Cyprus will be published later this year. This lecture will survey the material included in that work and summarise her conclusions.

Dear Colonial Newsletter Subscriber,

Your subscription to Colonial Newsletter has lapsed as of 2009. The year 2010 marks the fiftieth anniversary of the Colonial Newsletter, the journal of record for all serious students of colonial coinage and the history of its production, circulation, counterfeiting, and collecting. A one- year subscription (3 issues) costs $50.00 for non-members of the American Numismatic Society and $35.00 for current ANS members. If you would like to renew for 2010, please visit our online store(<http://www.numismatics.org/CNL/CNL>) to renew with credit card or PayPal or to download a printable subscription form. Please contact me with any questions.

Sincerely,

The Colonial Newsletter (CNL) is a research journal dedicated to the study of early American numismatics. Founded in 1960, CNL has continuously published some of the most scholarly and seminal studies in this area of numismatics. Focusing on the study of the coinages produced by the states during the Confederation period of the United States, CNL also investigates a variety of other specie that our forefathers used in their daily lives. Anyone with an interest in early America and its struggle to establish a new nation will find something of value in this publication. CNL is published three times a year in April, August, and December.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New York, April 6, 2011.

AMERICAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY UNVEILS MANTIS: A MAJOR NUMISMATIC RESEARCH TOOL

American Numismatic Society Director Ute Wartenberg Kagan today unveiled the new interactive ANS collection search tool, MANTIS (<http://numismatics.org/search>). MANTIS (Mantis: A Numismatic Technologies Integration Service) provides access to all 600,000 records for objects in the ANS collection, through a series of new, easy-to-use search screens.

The new search tool is an open source implementation of several applications used in the Library, Archive, and Museum communities, including Apache Solr for faceted searching. The tool enables users to interact with the ANS collection through keyword searches or by browsing and sorting on numerous categorical and physical attributes common to numismatics. This search tool connects individual objects together by these searchable attributes, allowing users to seamlessly navigate from one object to its relations.

ANS Director Wartenberg explains, "The collections database is the work of a generation of expert cataloguers, and was originally designed to allow curatorial staff to manage the massive holdings of the Society. MANTIS marks a huge leap forward in making this work available to the general public in a way that is easy to understand for specialist and non-specialist alike. Together with DONUM, our bibliographic search tool, the release of MANTIS places the ANS at the forefront of numismatic research on the World Wide Web."

The Database breaks down into 11 Departments, which can be searched as a whole or individually. Approximate totals for each department are as follows:

Greek	100,000
Roman	80,000
Byzantine	15,000
Islamic	60,000
East Asian	45,000
South Asian	50,000

Medieval	50,000
Modern	100,000
United States	25,000
Latin America	20,000
Medals and Decorations	50,000

Traditional searches by mint person, date and numismatic categories are catered for, and supplemented with a new map interface. This latter feature, still under development, will eventually allow the user to find coins, medals and banknotes issues around the world by clicking on points on a map.

"The release of the new research tool is an exciting development, not just for the access it provides to our remarkable collection," notes ANS Deputy Director Andrew Meadows. "It also harnesses an ANS initiative to create stable identities for numismatic concepts on the World Wide Web through the nomisma.org project. This is most visible at the moment in the mapping functions that we offer, but will ultimately extend to the creation of other exciting new tools."

The design of MANTIS is the work of ANS Web Developer Ethan Gruber, working in close collaboration with ANS Research Scientist Sebastian Heath.

Heath explains: "The new ANS database is now positioned to become a tool for expressing all the links inherent in each individual coin. We can already see this in the powerful mapping function. Even at this early stage of development users can browse the Greek and Roman departments by geography, with an expanding set of North American mints also coming available. It's already possible to make maps of similar coins, such as those showing Greek and Roman deities, and this functionality will become available for more coins as Ethan Gruber continues his work. The database also supports a variety of export formats that will encourage exploration of the links between numismatics and other disciplines. Underlying much of our work is a technical approach called 'Linked Open Data'. As the humanities increasingly embrace digital tools, researchers of all stripes can be confident that the ANS is bringing exceptional resources into their domains."

Dear Mr. Newman,

I thought I would send this Happy Birthday email today instead of on May 25 thinking that you might have received thousands of emails yesterday. Although I suppose it this would be considered a belated birthday email wouldn't it?

All my best wishes to you on this wonderful milestone. Happy 100th Birthday!

Hi Eric,

I was writing this email when you called - so now I know you will be back in St Louis in 5 days.
It was so nice to speak with you today.

I hope that you have had a wonderful summer. And I hope that Irene did not affect you badly in the Vineyard.
We have been holding onto your plaque here in the vault until you are back in St. Louis. And so I am curious if you are back yet, so we can send it to you.

As you probably know, we are going to be making an ANS medal available by subscription. The obverse is from a reduction of your plaque. And the reverse will be from a design by the same artist, Amy Kann. see attached photo maquettes. I hope you agree that it will be a quite fine medal. We will be offering it in bronze and probably silver. As soon as I have the details I will let you know.

I will send your plaque after Labor Day (and a few extra of the ANS Magazine with your image on the cover).

With kind regards,

Dear Eric,

I just want you to know that I am at the ANS every day now and am participating in your summer seminar. Thanks so much for establishing and funding it.

The New York Times is about to run a story concerning the re-acquired HSA Spanish coins. They will be taking pictures of Ute with some of the coins for the story today.

Warmest regards.

Dear Trustees of the ANS,

A memorial service will be held to honor the late Richard B. (Rick) Witschonke, Curatorial Associate at the American Numismatic Society, who passed away on February 24, 2015 in Sarasota, Florida, at the age of 69. He was a much-loved colleague and friend of the ANS staff, Trustees, and many of the members of the numismatic community.

The service will take place on April 4, 2015 at noon at the Grand Colonial, 86 NJ-173 in Hampton, NJ 08827.

If you plan on attending the service, please let me know. I can be reached at [REDACTED] or [REDACTED] ext. 117.

There are several hotels nearby in Clinton and Lebanon, NJ should you decide to stay overnight.

With kind regards,
